Sara Toering, Esq. is the owner and principal of SJT Partners, a Georgia-based law and consulting firm that serves organizations and leaders around the country seeking to impact federal, state, and local policy focused on land, housing affordability, and equitable neighborhood and community development. As an attorney, advocate, and facilitator, Sara has over 20 years of professional experience working with people and organizations seeking to make transformational and socially just change. Sara is the co-author of the 2012 Georgia Land Bank Act and works with land banks throughout Georgia and the country providing organizational development guidance and training. She works with state and local government and community leaders on land banking, code enforcement, tax foreclosure reform, eviction-protection, and other systems that can be a part of equitable land use and affordable housing development. Sara is also an experienced facilitator specializing in executive coaching and organizational development, cultural competency and diversity, equity and inclusion facilitation, and community engagement.

Sara received a J. D. from Emory University School of Law, a Master's in Divinity from the Candler School of Theology at Emory University, and a B.A. from Calvin College. She is currently a Senior Fellow at the Center for Community Progress and the Center for the Study of Law & Religion at Emory University. Learn more about Sara and SJT Partners at sjtpartners.com.
